THE OLD PUEBLO.

A Noted Woman Now In Tucson.

Wm. Lee and Lizzie Turner Married.
—Mrs. W. H. Barnes III—
Rich Ore Shipped.

From the Tucson Citizen.

Mrs. Judge Barnes has recently been quite ill and for a time her friends were alarmed for her safety, but fortunately the crisis is past and her speedy recovery is now hopefully looked for.

Richard Kinsman, of Tombstone, is a prodigy. He recently shipped a batch of ore to Deming and received $250 more than expected. This is one of the most marvelous things ever heard of in Arizona. Mr. Kinsman is said to have a whole mine of just such material.

William Lee, son of the late James Lee, is in the city. He was born in a little stone cabin at the "Jimmie Lee Mine," 12 miles west of Tucson nearly 26 years ago and grew to manhood in this city. He was married on the 21st inst. to Miss Lizzie Turner, an estimable young lady of Florence, and brought her on a visit to his friends and relatives of whom he has many hereabouts. His father was James Lee, one of the noted pioneers of southern Arizona, and who contributed much to the opening up of the country.

Miss Nellie Cushman, the irrepressible, is again in the city looking for fields and pastures new. She has just returned from a trip to Alaska. This was her second visit to that far off domain of Uncle Sam. From here she will probably go to Mexico. Miss Cushman is one of the best known women on the Pacific slope, having been, at one time or another, a boarding house keeper in every prominent mining camp this side of the Rockies. Among the miners she has a world of friends—for no man was ever turned from her doors whether he had means or not. It is said that she has "grubstaked" more than a thousand prospectors in her time, but still the long looked for bonanza has not been struck.

Long ago Gillet mastered the art of cutting trousers to perfection.

NEW GOLD DISTRICT.

Immense Deposits of Rich Ore
In Sight.

The New Camp of Pittsburg the Coming Mining Town of Southeast Arizona.

From the Tombstone Prospector.

The new gold district near Tombstone is assuming prominence and is taking on city airs. The immense deposits of rich ore and the undoubted certainty of the advent of capitalists to purchase several mines in that district in the near future, and work them on an extensive scale, which would be a potent factor in the spring up of a booming and prosperous town, has caused a general feeling to get in on the "ground floor," and consequently a townsite has been located and a town born and christened "Pittsburg."

The projectors have not been idle as already three substantial houses are erected on the ground, and several more are in course of construction in the new Eldorado.

An assay office has been fitted up, and is now in running order, by Wm. Johnston who is kept busy making assays for the district.

A stable, or corral is also one of the acquisitions to the new town for the convenience of travelers, and is ably looked after by Charles Hart. Lodging house accommodations can also soon be had where the weary can find rest, and enjoy the sleep of the just, amidst the most promising gold mines in the country.

The townsite as yet is more a matter of convenience than of speculation, nevertheless all that goes to make up a bustling mining settlement will soon spring into life at Pittsburg, which name has been given it in honor of our ex-mayor, Geo. H. Fitts, who is heavily interested in the district.

It is not improbable that a rush for town lots, and concessions for business houses, saloons, etc., will result, and that Pittsburg will bloom out as a thriving tributary to Tombstone within a short time would not be surprising.

Three more houses are being loaded to be moved out to the district by the big McPherson teams, and today a load of lumber was taken out by Chas. Hart.
